Enemy Subs Reported To Be Doing 'Efficient' Job Against Supply Ships.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— American fliers bombed Japan's Aleutians base at Kiska 13 times on Saturday, the navy reported today, causing a heavy explosion at North Head, the mouth of Kiska harbor, setting several fires and damaging the airplane runway.

(By United Press)

The southwest Pacific faced a combined Japanese air and submarine campaign today, marked by a new aerial thrust at the north Australian port of Darwin in which Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique reported Allied fliers suffered heavy losses.

The Japanese said they shot down 21 Allied planes over Darwin but the Allied communique gave no figures. At least 13 of the raiding force of 51 were shot down or damaged while the port itself suffered little.

It was the first raid by the Japanese in force on Allied outposts fringing north Australia and coincided with renewed warnings that Japan may start an all-out offensive.

A spokesman at MacArthur's headquarters said the Japanese submarine campaign so far was as efficient as that of the Nazis in the Atlantic. The Japanese, in a communique, said their underseas craft had sunk 32,000 tons of shipping the last few days.

Army Minister F. M. Forde of Australia warned that lack of Allied supplies might enable the Japanese to overrun Australia. A Chinese military expert, Gen. Yang Chieh, said Japan will launch

County Bond Sale Hits $7,839,931 With More Coming

As money still piled up today in the Richland county second War Loan drive, which officially closed Saturday night, a total of $7,838,931.45 was reported.

Reports are as yet incomplete showed the drive to be $1,189,319.45 over its original goal of $6,649,000. Subscriptions to date amount to $2,290,500 from the bank and $5,548,431.45 from individuals, industries and other non-bank investors.

Among the bond selling agencies throughout the county which went over their goals is the women's division which at the last count had sold $564,870 topping its goal of $150,000 by more than $400,000. Included in this figure are the reports of 36 women's clubs, 15 are yet to report.

Fourteen more clubs have reached or surpassed their goals. They are the Atsowela Garden club, the Audobon club, the Blue Star Mothers, the Cooperettes, the Cosmopolitan club, Cottage Garden club, Mary Washington chapter of the D. A. R., Navy Mothers, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks auxiliary, Chapter A. T. of the P. E. O., St. Rita's Sodality, Sappho club, Wednesday Study club, Westinghouse 711 auxiliary and Delta Sigma Zeta.

Paul M. Eliot, co-chairman of the drive said today that he was "very pleased with the work done by the women headed by Mrs. Louis J. Ott.

Meanwhile final reports coming in from Washington indicate that

Sees Sheriff, Chief, Catlett On Numbers

Prosecutor Acts After Dem Leader Challenges Assembly Statement.

An inquiry today by Acting Prosecutor John C. O'Donnell into whether numbers operators are active in Mansfield and Richland county failed to produce sufficient evidence to warrant a grand jury investigation, O'Donnell said.

The acting prosecutor's probe followed a statement last week by John L. Catlett, Richland county representative, who told the Ohio house of representatives that "thousands of dollars taken in this racket go to a money-in-politics pool to corrupt local officials."

Catlett explained immediately, however, that he did not refer to Mansfield officials but to instances in other Ohio cities.

Called into session this morning at his office by O'Donnell were Catlett, Police Chief Meade K. Bates and Sheriff Frank E. Robinson.

The prosecutor said he acted on a request from Frank Cave, county Democratic executive chairman, for a grand jury investigation "to clear or convict any local officials as charged."

Catlett explained at today's session that he referred specifically to Youngstown where the Ohio attorney general had ordered a probe of alleged gambling activities.

He told O'Donnell that he used the illustration in his argument before the house last week to convince the legislators of the necessity of passing the anti-numbers bill to increase the penalty for convicted operators. The bill, defeated earlier by the house, was passed by a vote of 78 to 31.

Asked by O'Donnell today if they knew of specific cases of numbers operations in the city and county or instances of officials being corrupted by numbers racketeers, Sheriff Robinson and Chief Bates said they knew of none.

Catlett repeated that he had not referred to Mansfield or Richland

Earlier, the seismograph recorded two quakes, at 1:24 and 1:30 p. m., EWT, yesterday, 2,300 miles south of New York. Officials said the quake apparently occurred in the vicinity of Columbia, South America.

GET FORMS FOR LIQUOR RATIONS

Mansfielders Start To Obtain Applications To Register For Purchases.

First of the application forms for registration of liquor consumers were given out at the Mansfield state liquor store this afternoon soon after the store's opening at 1 p. m.

Most persons who called got only application forms for themselves only although some acted as agents in obtaining forms for members of their immediate household, as provided in a revised order received at the store today. A previous order had directed that each applicant call in person for the registration form, which must be filled out and returned by mail to the store from which it was issued by May 10.

Registrants are required to furnish proof of their place of residence because the ration

JAIL FUGITIVE

Los Angeles Holds Youth Who Broke Out of County Jail.

Richard Henry Wymer, 19, who escaped from the Richland county jail Dec. 26, is in custody in San Francisco, J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, wired Richland county officers yesterday.

According to the terse telegram, Wymer was arrested for robbery April 19, but it was not until Saturday that FBI officials in Washington learned from fingerprint records that he was the fugitive sought by them and local authorities.

Arrested in connection with a series of tire thefts in the county Sept. 14, 1942, Wymer filed bars in a cell window of the jail Dec. 2 to make the only escape through that method in the institution's history. He was awaiting action of the grand jury which later indicted him for grand larceny. He was wanted by the FBI for draft evasion and will probably face prosecution in San Francisco.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson today warned congress that the coming Allied air offensive may be curtailed by a shortage of 100-octane gasoline.

Testifying before the senate Truman committee he denied that he is engaged in a personal quarrel with Rubber Director William Jeffers, but nevertheless asserted that the rubber program is blocking increased production of the vitally needed gasoline.

"Air supremacy' is indispensible to success in the war," Patterson declared. "The armed forces therefore are committed to a vast program of air power.

OHIO MINERS HASTEN BACK TO COAL PITS

Three Major Companies Say 'Almost Normal' Digging Resumed Today.

MEN GLAD TO GO BACK

Brief Stoppage Since Friday Not Expected To Interfere With Work Resumption.

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

BELLAIRE — (AP) — Ohio's miners streamed back to work today.

There was no precise estimate of the number reporting on the early shift, but three major mines said they were operating with a nearly normal complement under an agreement between the government and the United Mine Workers ending a work stoppage that started Friday midnight.

"The men are going back as fast as they can be notified," said Adolph Pacifico, vice president of District 6, UMW. "I expect that the afternoon shift will be normal."

Mines reporting virtually normal operations this morning were the Powhatan of the North American Coal Mining Corp., said to be the state's largest works, and three mines of the Rail and River Coal company.

At Cleveland, the M. A. Hanna company said operations had been resumed at four of its eastern Ohio mines — Willow Glen, Dun Glen, Georgetown and Coal Hollow No. 1.

Miners were jovial as they left their homes and went to work; many said they were happy the stoppage was ended and expressed belief their demand for pay increases still would be met.

Pacifico said every man would have been at work this morning had communication with them been possible. Many of the miners live in out-of-the-way places and could not be notified promptly of the agreement under which miners

WINS AND LOSES

Race Fan Robbed of $6,000 He Won at Churchill Downs.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—Harry Dusenberry, 31, Muskogee, Okla., pulled $6,000 out of the feedbox at Churchill Downs, but someone else pulled the same $6,000 out of Dusenberry's matress.

Dusenberry's wife also reported the theft of her diamond rings, which she valued at $2,500.

Dusenberry had a good thing in the fifth on Derby Day. He collected $6,000 when longshot Busyridge romped home a winner, paying $54.60 on a $2 ticket.

Yesterday, three men bound and gagged the Dusenberrys in their hotel room, found the money in the mattress, took the rings and departed.

Full Operation Of Coal Fields Due Tuesday

Return Under Stars And Stripes And Flag Of Truce Announced By UMW Chief Only Minutes Before President's 'Duty' Call.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The coal crisis averted, miners started back to work today in a trickle that promised to grow into a stream by nightfall and to have the mines running fully by tomorrow morning.

Their new employer was the United States government, whose commander in chief, President Roosevelt, called on the men to get back to digging the coal so necessary for war production. The Stars and Stripes waved over the shafts, symbolic of the government which stepped in when John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers stopped work last week.

A symbolic flag of truce, too, accompanied the return. For Lewis and other UMW officials asked the miners to resume work tomorrow morning on a 15-day temporary basis.

Most of those who have been on strike appeared delaying their return until Lewis' date of tomorrow, and in some instances today where men showed up there were not enough of them to open the mine. Three hundred and fifty men at Gallatzin, Pa., led the return, entering their shaft at 6 a. m. EWT.

Eight major mines in Ohio reported a nearly normal complement and a district vice president of the UMW predicted the afternoon shift would be normal.

Several hundred miners went back in the Harlan county field, where union spokesmen indicated all the field's mines would be turning out coal tomorrow.

In Illinois, whistles blown for work were largely ignored by the 25,000 UMW members there, but most of the 18,000 AFL coal miners were on hand.

Uncle Sam's new boss of the mines, which appeared as late as Saturday to be headed for a crippling general shutdown, is Fuels Coordinator Harold Ickes. He will seek to settle the wage contract dispute between the miners and operators during the next 15 days.

Incidentally, Ickes reported in a routine bureau of mines paper today that coal on hand amounted, on the average, to a 33 days' supply. Describing the position of

NEW YORK — John L. Lewis called a meeting of the United Mine Workers' international policy committee for 4 p. m. (EWT) today to discuss resumption of contract negotiations under the 15-day strike postponement proclaimed last night.

A UMW spokesman, announcing the committee meeting, said it had not yet been determined whether negotiations would be resumed here or would be transferred to Washington.

Lewis meanwhile arranged with anthracite operators to postpone today's negotiations to 10 a. m. Tuesday. The anthracite miners and operators have continued negotiations despite the strike.

Lewis announced the 15-day truce last night when he left a

BROOKLYN HOUSE PLANE'S TARGET

Sprays Apartment With Machine Gun Bullets.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Brooklyn police have a real mystery to solve today after an unidentified plane yesterday sprayed three apartment houses with 50 caliber machine gun bullets.

The incident occurred shortly after a Sunday surprise test air raid was sounded in the New York area.

Although army, navy and marine corps information offices disclaimed any knowledge of the near tragedy, police said they had found four of the 50 caliber slugs.

Vocal Groups, Symphony On Music Week Program Tonight

Opening with a concert of massed choirs of eight Mansfield churches yesterday at First Presbyterian church, Mansfield's music week celebration will continue today with a concert at John Simpson auditorium at 8 p. m.

Three vocal groups, the junior glee club under the direction of Fanny Lew Eiler, the Mothersingers under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Ireland, and the Business Women's glee club directed by Myrtle Booth, with the Mansfield little symphony directed by Eugene Weinberger, will appear on the program.

Outstanding selection of the Sunday choir concert was the singing of "Unfold, Ye Portals," by Gounod by the massed choirs under the direction of Mrs. Claude Ewing. The choir composed of more than 150 choristers from the eight church choral groups also sang "The Radiant Morn Hath Passed Away," by Woodard.

Preceding the massed choir presentation the choirs of St. Luke's Lutheran, St. John's Evangelical and Reformed, South Main Evangelical, First Methodist, Grace Episcopal, First Presbyterian, First Congregational, and Central Methodist churches each sang one anthem.

The program tonight will open with the presentation of the colors and the singing of the national anthem. The junior glee club com-

Ford Workers Quit In Dispute Over 'Swing Shift.'

DETROIT —(UP)— War production again was halted in a section of the Ford Motor company's River Rouge plant today when 4,784 employes went on strike as a result of an argument over operation of a "swing shift."

The dispute began last night when 812 employes refused to work in the production foundry. The stoppage was continued by 3,972 employes who reported 6 a. m. shift today. The foundry produces tank and motor parts.

A company spokesman said 340 of 581 employes in the magnesium foundry walked out today in sympathy with workers in the production foundry, forcing the company to close the building.

CHAPTER XXVIII

"Bill! Please turn loose my wrist! You're hurting me!"

"You're already hurt!"

"No! . . . No, I'm all right. I—" But she knew it was futile. She felt of her bruised cheek, saw him staring at it.

"Rosemary, that man—struck you!" Bill St. Clair growled that from deep within his chest. Strange fury beset him now, even though he was deadly calm. "Didn't he . . . Answer me, didn't he?"

She looked mutely up at him, despair in her eyes.

"He came out here to see you, didn't he? He wanted you to do something you wouldn't do? . . . Didn't he? Answer me!"

"Yes," she whispered.

For a long moment he was silent. Only by the steel-like grip on her wrist could she feel his emotions.

"What did he do to you?" he rasped, at last.

She didn't answer.

"He struck you. Perhaps several times. He dared to do that!"

She was rigid now. Eyes closed.

"Rosemary, he—"

"It was my fault," she managed. "Everything is my fault!"

"What do you mean?"

"Bill I—early this afternoon, in Option, I saw Harry. I told him then."

"Told him what?" Bill snapped.

"I told him that he had lost. I told him all the things that we had done, or that we would do. That's when I—when I knew we could use the old ghost town here, for housing the new air school and personnel. He tried to coerce me again. He threatened me. I wouldn't stand for it. I told him I hated him, despised him. And I told him it was he, not you, who was a fool. I told him we wouldn't have to buy the lumber he had cornered, Bill!"

"You told him that!"

"It was true, and you know it yourself now. And Bill, I know you wouldn't go to Harry sooner—because of me!"

Bill was staring at her, pain in his own countenance now. She felt infinitely sorry for him.

"You risked everything, Bill. Your career. Your own self respect. Because you wanted to protect me. I just wanted to tell you I understood. I mean, I did toward the end. I don't know why you did it. Why you should have. But I'll honor you for it, always. If you had put the law on Harry it would surely have brought publicity and disgrace and all that on me, too. He would have sworn that I was his agent, working as a spy with you. He said so!"

"I guessed as much," said Bill. "And so you held off. But didn't suspect me?"

"Never, Rosemary."

"I tried so hard, Bill. To smooth it out for you, I mean. I wanted Harry to let the lumber go through when we thought we needed it. But—he guessed at a lot of things. He knew you wouldn't force the issue, because of me. He accused you of a lot of things, but—he was waiting, until he thought you'd be desperate and he could get his high price. Force you to pay it. Force you to—cheat the government with him!"

"He struck you tonight."

She nodded. "He was angry, Bill. He knew we had whipped him on the lumber deal, and he wanted to—take it out on me. Tried to make me leave the state with him. Tried to get revenge. I wouldn't go. I told him I'd never have anything to do with him. That's when he—when we—fought."

"Are you badly hurt? Anywhere?"

"No. Except in my mind. I never dreamed anybody could be so utterly heartless and cruel!"

That broke her control and she moved away from him. He stood still, watching her go in the hotel and up the stairs toward her room. He knew she was crying.

For a half minute more he stood there, motionless. He stared off down the ghostly canyon. Quietly, then, he too turned toward the hotel. He was like a man in a daze, but he went to Uncle Pete Quincy's room wearing a strange look of determination.

"Uncle Pete—that gun I bought from you. I want it now."

"Heh? It's locked in the vault, Bill," the old man said.

"Get it please."

"Right now? You want it tonight?"

"NOW, I said!" Bill almost roared it.

Shocked a little, Uncle Pete hastened to obey. Something had come over his young friend, Uncle Pete knew. But he couldn't understand what. He just led the way hastily to the hotel vault.

The vault was under Bill's own room upstairs. He had heard the big iron door swing open once and noted its crazy, almost comic creaking. Now he heard it again, with no thought of amusement.

Scre-e-e-ek. Clank-clank. Scree-ke-e-ek. That's about the noise it made when Uncle Pete opened the lock and pulled.

Lewis Grants Respite In Mine Strike

THE 15-DAY RESPITE which John L. Lewis has granted in the coal strike gives at least a brief worrisome interval for effort to iron out differences between leaders of the miners' union and their government.

Sunday evening's rapid action, with the Lewis announcement preceding President Roosevelt's speech by only a few minutes, served to ease the tension which has spread throughout the entire country during preceding days of work suspension in the mines, but failed to encourage belief that any final solution of the problem has yet been found.

No change is made in the situation that coal mines continue under government operation, this having been emphasized in the Lewis statement that "mine workers recognize that they have a new employer who has not yet had time to appraise the immediate problems facing the industry."

These problems, as previously dwelt upon by Lewis, are based largely on increasing costs of living, which affect other millions of Americans as well as miners, and which the president, in his talk last night, promises shall be made the subject of immediate investigation and action.

Wages and living costs are so closely linked that neither can be considered without involving the other, and it may be hoped that in judging the case of miners' demands for wage increases the whole matter of relationship of earnings and commodity prices will be thoroughly canvassed, in their effects on inflation.

Encouraging indication in the present controversy is that the War Labor Board is apparently to be upheld as the agency for determination of equitable wages, commensurate with living costs, which will, however, necessitate equally firm handling of prices all along the line.

Red Cross Points Way To Peace

WHILE it seems impossible for anyone to put into words the exact form of a world pattern for post-war peace, some hint of a desirable attitude of people toward other people and nations toward other nations may be found in the humanitarian practices of the American Red Cross and the International Red Cross, which recognize no territorial, nationalistic, racial or religious boundaries in the performance of missions of mercy.

It is estimated that since the Nazi attack on Poland, thirty million victims of this war have been helped by the American Red Cross, the activities of which have been as nearly world-wide as Axis aggression would permit.

As one country after another fell before the Nazi tide of conquest the Red Cross steadily expanded its program to aid as many as possible of the victims and refugees.

In co-operation with the Alliance of Red Cross and the Red Crescent societies of Russia, the American Red Cross has overcome many obstacles in sending needed drugs, hospital, medical and surgical supplies to Russia to the value of $5,000,000, and Red Cross aid that has actually reached Free China exceeds $4,000,000 in value.

Japan, from the depths of its own degradation, may still have among its people some who recall that it was the American Red Cross that took the initiative, in September 1923, in rushing aid to that stricken island when an earthquake took toll of almost 100,000 lives.

If the spirit of the Red Cross could be made to permeate the world permanent peace could be established by removing the causes of war.

Dogs and Victory Gardens

OPINION, based on observation, is that prevention of damage to Victory gardens and flower beds by neighborhood dogs is largely a matter of individual action rather than police enforcement of existing laws.

This season of the year customarily brings a rather sternly worded warning to dog owners to keep their pets from being neighborhood nuisances, but nothing much comes of it—unless someone is bitten by a vicious dog—and unrestrained animals continue to run at large, to the detriment of all growing things with which they come in contact.

Whether the need for food from Victory gardens will impress derelict dog owners as being sufficiently important to change from the practice of allowing their dogs to roam at will is problematical.

Disinclination of most people to engage in a neighborhood row, coupled with the idea of many dog owners that THEIR pet should be accorded special privileges on account of being "such a nice dog," tends to complicate the situation.

Many Reading Willkie's Book

WENDELL WILLKIE'S discovery of the world is an interesting phenomenon, no matter whether it is regarded as geographical, ethnological or political—and it may be all three. His travels suggest Marco Polo's celebrated tour of Asia in the thirteenth century, when he roamed from Italy to China and back again, mostly on foot.

Obviously Mr. Willkie has had the advantage in his mode of locomotion and the time factor. Also in credibility. For Marco Polo's fellow-countrymen thought he had dreamed all those strange travel experiences, whereas Americans today take the Willkie report seriously.

That is, most of them seem to do so, judging from book sales and comments. His book, "One World," is selling very well, indeed—possibly better than any other travel book since Charles Dickens, the English novelist, discovered America, or what he thought was America, and wrote about it.

Evidently Willkie "has something" that many other Americans lacked when they went abroad. And what is this magical literary carpet? Apparently a great curiosity about the aforesaid world, a great interest in it, a fresh and keen mind, and a great liking for human beings. With such equipment, a traveler may fare far and do well for himself and his readers.

Physical And Mental Gains From Military Training Are Observed

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says one of the things which impressed him on his 20-state tour was the benefit in physical condition and mental alertness that men and women in service and war-workers uniforms have realized.

He thinks the camps and industrial plants ought to be put to good use after the war, possibly by requiring the youth of America to give a year's service to the country. He has no specific program and expresses the view that any plan developed probably would be only partly military.

A lot of people, especially parents of boys under military age, have been doing a deal of thinking along that line lately. They're interested in the physical and mental training, and the character building, but it cuts deeper than that.

Despite the fact their children may not be called for duty in the present conflict, these parents have reached the conclusion that they don't want their lads to have to go into some future war without thorough training.

Of course, the hope is there won't be any further wars, but if the present conflagration has taught us anything it is that security depends on preparedness.

Preparedness of the individual means security not only for him but for his country. Green troops which go into battle will suffer terrible casualties until they've learned the tricks of war in the hard and bloody way. And while they are learning, they may have lost the war to experienced forces.

The well-trained, well-armed man is the one who will live the longest. The well-trained, well-armed army is the one which will render the best defense of its country.

HAVING reached this conclusion, many parents are figuring on sending their young hopefuls to military academies as soon as they reach the age for preparatory schooling. With this education a young man would come up to his compulsory military service with a good background.

Think that's too hard-boiled? Well, it doesn't represent the ruminating of an arm-chair bachelor, for I have a small boy of my own, and I've seen plenty of war at first hand. I hate the bloody business but believe the common-sense way is to be prepared for it.

A generation ago compulsory military service didn't suit this democratic country. As a matter of fact we didn't need it, because we were safe behind our ocean barriers. But things have changed.

THE OTHER DAY the Royal Air Force announced an aviator had made a record north Atlantic flight—a landfall-to-landfall trip from Newfoundland to the United Kingdom—in six hours and twenty minutes. When the ocean can be spanned that quickly, it means the United States no longer enjoys the security of isolation.

We don't need to think of military training in terms of any such arduous and time-consuming process as is seen in militaristic Germany. That represents an extreme which, of course, is abhorrent to us.

German boys serve in the Hitler youth movement between the ages of ten and 18. They then do three years compulsory military service, after which they are in the reserve for 14 years and in the Landwehr, or home defense, for nine years more.

The thing that has interested me most about the Nazi training has been that devoted to the youth movement. I was in Germany not long before the war and must admit that never have I seen finer physical specimens than one encountered in the teen age lads who were undergoing intensive exercise in the labor groups and other corps.

Heaven forbid that we emulate the Boche, but after all they have demonstrated what physical training can do.

POTATOES at eight cents a pound is one demonstration of the marvelous operation of our price control system.

A dollar and twenty cents a peck for spuds that were selling for 50 cents a bushel a year ago.

And don't be screaming at me that the price is up because the supply is down.

That's the text book law of supply and demand which we repealed when we slapped on controls.

Technically in a controlled economy . . . and that's what we're supposed to be operating under at the moment . . . there is no relation between supply and demand.

If there was only one peck of potatoes left in the entire country it could be sold for 15 cents under controlled economy although it might bring a hundred dollars under the normal law of supply and demand.

Ah, it's an education to read this column. It amazes even me.

WELL, that second war loan went over the top easily. It just goes to show that the people of the country don't stall, dodge, quibble, fumble and fool around on important money matters the way congress and some of their leaders do.

Suppose the average man had fallen down on this financial matter the way congress has fallen down month after month on that other financial matter, a pay-as-you-go tax plan?

The imperative need for money would be put before him in January and he would spend February, March and April beating around the bush. By July he would get down to the point of buying some, but would put it off to take a vacation. Maybe by Christmas he would decide how to meet the situation.

Timely Editorial

China's Lidice.

From China to Czechoslovakia, the blood of slaughtered innocents demands vengeance. East and west, Nazi and Jap, our enemies exhibit the same lust for slaughter, the same callous disregard for human life. The barbarism of the Axis is more horrifying than that of Attila and his Huns, or Genghis Khan and his Mongols.

In Czechoslovakia, the village of Lidice was wiped out of existence, its men killed, its women sent to concentration camps and its children put under Nazi guidance, in reprisal for the assassination of a Nazi hangman. In China, the Japs massacred every man, woman and child in the coastal area where American fliers landed after bombing Tokyo, their crime—helping Americans reach safety.

Each of these Chinese is a war martyr. And as the United States exacts punishment for the murder of American fliers in Tokyo the same punishment should be given to those Japanese officers responsible for this crime against our friends.—Akron Beacon Journal.

Ships Piled High In Persian Gulf In Super Attempt To Aid Russia

WASHINGTON—It is now permissible to reveal that several months ago about 300,000 tons of shipping were tied up in the Persian gulf waiting to be unloaded.

This represented a super attempt to aid Russia, and although ships were tied up for weeks, it was not the fault of the War Shipping Administration or the army. This was an attempt to show good faith to Russia when she was under terrific siege, when the battle of Stalingrad was in the balance.

In some cases ships rode at anchor fifty and sixty days in the Gulf of Persia, waiting to unload, their crews idle.

Basic reason for this delay is that port facilities along the Gulf of Persia are backward if not medieval. There were no modern docks or cranes, and to unload locomotives without cranes is almost impossible. Also the railroad running north from Basra to the Caucasus is a meandering affair, never completely finished, originally built to reach the shah's hunting lodge rather than port facilities on the Caspian.

Very little had been done by the British to improve this line, until American engineers got busy. Even before Pearl Harbor, when we first started sending aid to Russia, American railroad men were rushed to Basra.

But it was a tough job, and was still unfinished last fall and summer. At that time the Nazis were knocking our Murmansk convoys off Norway into smithereens. So to keep faith with Russia, ships were piled into the Gulf of Persia.

Today the situation, though still difficult, is greatly improved. In fact, hard-hitting Lew Douglas, dynamo of the War Shipping Administration, has pepped up unloading facilities in India, South Africa and other bad bottlenecks where previously U. S. ships had to wait three and four weeks to unload.

Mrs. Harry Hopkins.

THE SCENE is the north grounds of the White House on a spring afternoon. The big circular tulip bed is just bursting into bloom, and a little girl on a bicycle is riding on the great curved driveway.

She comes to the stone gates on Pennsylvania avenue, where the guards are. "Has my mother come home yet?" she asks. The guards shake their heads.

She disappears, riding to another part of the grounds. Presently she comes back. "Has my mother come home?" Still the answer is, "No."

But the third time she is not disappointed. Her mother has come home.

The little girl is Diana Hopkins, daughter of Harry, and the lady is not her mother, but the former Mrs. Louise Macy, now Mrs. Hopkins, and the step-mother of Diana.

But members of the White House staff are impressed with the fact that Mrs. Hopkins is in truth a real mother to Diana. The little girl could hardly love her own mother more.

Note: Mrs. Hopkins leaves the White House between 8 and 8:15 every morning, returning after 5. She spends the entire day, every day, at Columbia hospital, serving as a nurse's aide.

Worried Over Railroads.

CERTAIN Washington officials acquainted with railroad operation are worried about temporary breakdowns of the transportation system, and consequent serious delays in moving war materials.

While it is admitted that the railroads are doing a "grand job," there is no overlooking the fact that the burden is proving too heavy.

Most serious is the situation in westward freight traffic. The country's railroads were built with the idea of moving traffic eastward, with bigger facilities as traffic moves east. But today with a Pacific war to supply, the westward movement is greater than ever.

Breakdowns have occurred on single-track western lines, requiring re-routing in a circuitous manner, with delays of days and weeks in some cases. A transcontinental freight movement which once was accomplished in five days is now requiring ten and fifteen.

The remedy seems to be an increase in the centralized control of traffic. This smells like government operation, from the railroads' point of view, and they shy away from it. But officials in ODT who have no railroad connections regard such control as necessary for the wartime job.

Note: The burden for meeting these problems falls on the shoulders of V. V. Boatner, director of the Division of Railroad Transport in the ODT. Boatner has now shifted to a "without compensation" basis so he can act as consultant for the railroads and be paid by them, while still officially working for the government. He was formerly president of the Chicago Great Western Railroad.

ERNIE PYLE Roving Reporter

Here's the Story of Capt. Tony Lumpkin, Who Wasn't Satisfied In Safe Place.

NORTHERN TUNISIA—(By Cable)—Another friend whom I've mentioned before in these columns is now among the missing. He too we know almost definitely is a prisoner.

He is Capt. Tony Lumpkin, of Mexico, Mo. Tony was headquarters commandant of a certain outfit—a headquarters commandant being a sort of militarized hotel manager.

Just before he disappeared Tony got to going by the nickname of "Noah" Lumpkin, because he always seemed to pick out such a miserably wet place for a command post. On their last move before he was captured, the commanding general—a swell guy with a sense of humor—called Captain Lumpkin over, stood with him outside a tent looking out over the watery landscape, and congratulated him on locating them in the center of such a beautiful lake.

Tony Lumpkin needn't have been captured at all if he had been content to stick to his comparatively safe "hotel managing." But he wanted to get a crack at the Jerries himself. He is an expert gunner, and he finally talked the commander into letting him take five men and a small gun on wheels and go out to see what he could pick off.

THE first day they got one German truck plus something that turned out later to be a camel, although it looked like a truck from the distance they were firing from.

The second day they moved farther into the mountains to get into a better shooting position, but bagged nothing that day.

On the third day they went even farther into the hills, hunting a perfect spot for firing.

Captain Lumpkin used to share a tent with Maj. Chuck Miller of Detroit and with their assistant, Corp. William Nikolin of Indianapolis, both of whom I've written about before. They formed an intimate little family.

That third night Major Miller came in late. He was astonished, and a little bit concerned, to see Tony's cot empty. When he woke up next morning there was still no Tony.

He knew something had happened. He went to the general and got permission to start out with a squad of his own military police and hunt for his lost companion.

They covered all the ground Tony had covered, and finally, by studying the terrain and talking with others who had been near by, and interviewing German prisoners, they pieced together what had happened. The hill that Captain Lumpkin had been trying to get to had simply been lousy with German machine-gunners. The Germans saw him all the time. They sent out a party that worked behind and surrounded him. A German who was captured later said that a captain with a Tommy gun killed one German and wounded another before being taken. That is all we will know until Tony comes back to us.

THERE isn't grief in the little Lumpkin-Miller-Nikolin family, but there is a terrible vacancy.

"We were a perfect team," Major Miller says. "Tony was slow and easy-going, and I'm big and lose my temper too quickly. We balanced each other. I'd keep him up and he'd calm me down. We sure miss him, don't we Nicky?"

The two who remain, the officer and the corporal, seem drawn even closer together than before. When there are guests Nicky is called in to be part of the company. Nicky waits on the 6-foot-4 major as though he were a baby, and the major treats Nicky with an endearing roughness.

Major Miller went on:

"Nicky woke us up every morning by bringing in hot tea. Then the damned intellectual would ruin the day for me by sitting down while we drank the tea and starting an argument along the line of who was the greater writer, Tolstoy or Anatole France. That kind of stuff throws me.

Tony would argue with him, and relieve me of the horror of such a subject at such an hour. But now that Tony's gone I have to bear the load all by myself. It's awful.

And Nicky stands and grins while the major talks.

Our conversation drifted off onto other things, and a long time afterwards, out of a clear sky, Major Miller said:

"Damn it, I'd give a month's pay—no, I'd give six months' pay—no, by God, I'd give a year's pay if only old Tony were back."

And Nicky would gladly do the same.

Farmer's Diary

DOWN TO EARTH

HERE in Ohio, each of us, in order to maintain our normal living standards, needs one-half acre for cereals; two acres for dairy products; ten acres for meat products.

And the quality of the soil determines how well we live—determines the kind of people we are. In one state of the Union, seven men out of ten were found physically fit for military service; in another state, three out of ten were acceptable.

Weather and climate make a difference—not directly so much, as indirectly, through the effect of weather upon the soil. All dirt is not good soil. Our health depends upon the quality of the soil.

The cycle goes like this—rain dissolves the rocks. Combined with carbon dioxide of the air, it makes the carbonic acid that leaves the acid residue of rock that we call soil. Soil is just dissolved rock stopping over on the land on its way to the sea.

Where rainfall is scanty, as in the western states, the chemical elements in the rocks are not sufficiently dissolved to be available for plants. The soil lacks clay—the weathered elements which gives it 'body.' Grass is the dominant vegetation because it accommodates itself to periodic shortages in rainfall. Even trees in this section are those that can drop a share of their foliage to accommodate their leaf surface or evaporating area to the rate of water delivery by the roots, from the soil. Grass is rich in mineral and body building capacities—gives animals well developed in skeleton and flesh.

Soils in rainy places are more completely broken and dissolved. Nutrients leach out. By collecting the nutrients in their roots and leaves before they escape all kinds of plants act as reserves of soil fertility and accumulated organic matter means concentrated wealth.

More humus, more clay, mean more nutrients in the soil—better crops. Lack of soil nutrients reflects itself in all the life that depends upon soil for sustenance—and that means all of us. Fortunately there is no profit in plowing poor land. Fortunately natural laws rule life in any form. Fortunately, man can think and understand and learn to co-operate with nature to create more life and higher life, instead of hindering.

These facts, I know, merely scratch the surface of a fascinating field of knowledge. For those who desire to learn, the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources at Columbus has prepared material worth sending for.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THREE VITAL CHANGES

Under the new Laws of Bridge, there is never any question about who has the right to decide whether to condone an irregularity by the opponents or penalize it, or, in the latter case, what penalty shall be selected if several are optional. Now it is always the player at the left of the offender, during the auction, and during the play it is, of course, the declarer when a defender errs, but always the left-hand opponent when the declarer commits the irregularity. In this last instance, it is the player to the left of the dummy when the error has been made from dummy, and to the left of declarer when the slip has been from his hand.

A second very important change comes in all cases where a player has the right to direct the lead of a specific suit by an opponent. Now that right is expanded, to the effect that he may, if he wishes, forbid the lead of some one suit, thereby allowing the opponent to select a lead from any one of the other three suits. There are times when this proves extremely important, especially when the player might have called a lead from a suit in which the offender had no cards.

A third amendment, which is very much in line with common sense, applies to the correction of an insufficient bid. As before, the partner of the insufficient bidder must pass on his next turn if the bid is corrected by the lowest legal bid of the same denomination, but may re-enter the auction if he gets another chance, and the partner must pass throughout the balance of the auction if the correction is with any other bid.

A big change in the insufficient bid law concerns a player who makes a call and changes it in any way practically in the same breath, his last call replaces his first call, and the act of changing the call entails no penalty. This, of course, presumes that the second bid is what he meant in the first place, as doing this deliberately would come under the head of cheating.

Another telling change in the insufficient bid law protects an offender who corrects his bid belatedly, too late to claim immunity from the section just cited, but without due consideration; he may substitute some other bid. Of course, if the left hand opponent makes a call without allowing time for a substitution, the insufficient bid is condoned as if it were sufficient in the first place. That call of the left-hand opponent, by the way, need not be high enough to overcall anything excepting the insufficient bid.

Negro Music Outlined For Music Study Club

Miss Fanny Lew Eiler outlined the development of negro music and its influence on American music at a meeting of the Junior Music Study club held recently at the home of Muriel Morton.

Contributions of negro and white composers, using negro themes and rhythms, were played on the piano and phonograph. The modern jazz and boogie-woogie were traced back to the negro rhythms and blues of the post Civil war days. The negro national anthem, "Lift Every Voice," by J. R. Johnson, was sung by the group.

The business meeting was conducted by Richard Fisher. Plans were made for a picnic to be held in June.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Comes a postcard from my old playmate Scotty Penrod (Staff Sgt. W. S. Penrod to you, sir) down in Puerto Rico.

Scotty, you know, is a former News-Journal classified advertising solicitor, and an ex-News-Journal "B" league golfer.

And this is what he says:

Hi Rex: Just a line to let you know I'm still reading the old Sports Podge, and not only that—but it's being read by guys from California to New York. They like our paper very much.

The way you like golf you should have been here with me at one time. I lived RIGHT ON the golf course, But still couldn't break 80.

As ever,
Scotty.

Easiest way to break 80, Scotty, is to paint it on an egg. That's the way I do it. And thus endeth the Easter lesson.

This is to report a new champion at Ohio State Reformatory and if you'd care to go out and try for his championship you are welcome to it. I doubt if you'd even have to take a number to enter the contest.

Middleweight Heard, training for the OSR fistic finals, shovelled 2,000 scoops of slack one day, then reported for a ring workout. And they were 16-inch scoops.

Previous record was 1,200. Anyone care to make the new mark 2,100?

OSR Physical Director George Allerding had an announcement to make during the fistic fiesta at the Reformatory Saturday afternoon, right after that sensational Mangine-Coleman bout.

Said George, after the student body had shshed for silence: 'Number 20,408 (or some such number) is wanted in the guard room immediately."

Coming back to our corner of the ring, George informed the group of sportsmen sitting there: "I'll bet two dollars to a doughnut that 20,408 (or some such number) does not leave the hall."

But the sportsmen were a shrewd bunch of boys with a doughnut. They didn't take the wager.

Baseball Crowds Increase

170,000 See Games Sunday.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Baseball's front office men, who have been wrinkling their brows over poor attendance figures to date in the majors, wore broad grins today.

The turnstiles showed nearly 170,000 persons found some means of transportation to attend the eight big league games.

Over 50,000 howling fans journeyed via subway, trolley, bus and what-have-you to the Polo grounds to see the Dodgers and Giants split a double header while in Washington 32,000 baseball faithful watched the Yanks and Senators divide two. It was the largest crowd either of the league leaders had played before this season.

In the opening game the Dodgers grabbed a two run lead in the fifth stanza and held on to win 3-2 running their consecutive victory string to six. However, the Giants snapped the streak in the nightcap with a 2 1 win.

The Yanks took their opening game 11 to 3 but the Senators came back in the second contest to win 4-1.

Around the rest of the National league St Louis, in the loop's second spot, took a pair from Cincinnati 7-6 and 6-3 and Pittsburgh shut out Chicago in both ends of their twin bill, winning 3-0 and 1-0.

The Phils and Boston split their Sunday double header - Boston taking the first 7 6 and Philadelphia the second 8 to 1.

Over in the senior circuit the second place Cleveland Indians defeated Detroit 5 to 2 in the opener of their scheduled double header while the second game was postponed

The Athletics and Red Sox split their double bill with the A's taking the opener 7-6 and the Red Sox the final 8-1.

* * *

The St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox battled for 11 innings before the Browns slipped over a run for a 3-2 win but in the second contest St. Louis slammed over two runs in the opening stanza then slowly added to the total to take a 5 to 1 vocdory.

MACK HITS HOMER

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Jim Bagby, who holds two victories in as many starts, hurls for the Cleveland Indians today in the opener of a four-game series with the Chicago White Sox. His opponent is Bill Dietrich, who dropped a 2 to 0 decision to the Tribe in Chicago last week.

Ray Mack's first hit of the season—a home run—gave the Indians the run they needed to defeat the Detroit Tigers yesterday in the only game of what was to have been a double header. The second sacker's circuit clout broke a two-all tie in the fifth, and the Redskins added two superfluous tallies to register a 5 to 2 win.

Weather prevented the scheduled nightcap, disappointing 22,040 cash customers who watched Detroit's first Sunday contest of the year

Mel Harder received credit for yesterday's victory, but Mike Naymick the big rookie, supplied a neat job of relief hurling.

ROUND CLOCK

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A three-game, "around the clock" series of baseball games opens here today as the Cincinnati Reds take to their home field against the Pittsburgh Pirates at 11:30 a. m. EWT.

Tuesday's game starts at 3 p. m., the usual starting time for afternoon games, while Wednesday's contest gets under day at 9 p. m.

Today's starting time is an experiment by General Manager Warren C. Giles to accommodate war workers in the area who must report for work in mid-afternoon

Johnny Vander Meer will be on the mound for the Reds. Max Butcher opposes him

In yesterday's double header at St. Louis against the Cardinals the Redlegs took it on the chin in both ends of the bill, dropping the first in a thrilling, nine-inning contest, 7 to 6, and losing the second, 6 to 3

Shelby will play host to Shiloh on Wednesday afternoon before going on the road Thursday afternoon to New Haven for the third contest.

Shelby has won two out of three games.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Sales Talk: Latest "inside" dope in pro football circles is that Lieut. Dan Reeves is ready to sell his Cleveland franchise if anybody will meet his price . . . and if he doesn't sell, he'll move the club to Cincinnati, Boston or Los Angeles when he resumes operations after the war. . . . Bill McKechnie, jr., the Ol' Deacon's son, has been promoted from the Birmingham Barons to the front office of the Syracuse International league club . . . When Lieut. Akron Kegler Tops Ohio State Tourney

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Cecil Lebo of Akron replaced George Marlitz of Cleveland as top man in the class A singles event today after the fourth week-end of firing in the Ohio State Bowling association tournament at the Linsz recreation alleys.

Lebo's 705 score gives him an 11-pin edge over the Clevelander. However, Marlitz continued to set the place in the class A all-events with a 1995 figure.

In the only other week-end change the Canton press quintet of Canton with 3099 wrested first place from the Count's cafe entry in the class B five-man event

The tournament continues for two more week-ends.

Argue Whether Count's Freak

The Fleet Heads For Racing Triple Crown.

By SID FEDER

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—The two trainers sat in the club car on the way back from the Kentucky Derby, talking about racing "freaks," and naturally they got around to Count Fleet, who is supposed to be whatever a freak is

They had just seen the Count pick up $60,725 so easy it was like finding it in an old pair of pants hanging in a closet. He had romped in with the 69th Kentucky Derby by three lengths over second place Blue Swords and by 36 lengths over the battered Burnt Cork, kicking along in the rear of the field of ten.

"So," said one trainer, "he's a freak? Well, what is a racehorse supposed to be if not a good runner? And the Count can really ramble, can't he? Then, what is a freak?"

"Well," the other explained, "the Count's legs are too long and he runs with his head too high in the air for a real good racer. And while he's thick enough through the middle, he's very thin behind and his quarters tail off. That's not the way fine racehorses are supposed to be built."

But, whether the Count is a "freak" or just a four-legged job whose parts have been put together differently, he now looms capable of becoming the sixth horse in all racing to grab off the highly prized "triple crown" of Derby, Preakness and Belmont That is, he's a shoo-in unless Ocea Wave, withdrawn from the Derby and Preakness because of a wrenched joint between the foot and the ankle of his left foreleg, gets back in time to tangle with him in the third—and longest—jewel in the crown—the mile-and-a half Belmont next month.

Those the Fleet had to sail past Saturday in the milk-wagon time of 2:04, to reward the crowd estimated at 60,000 who knocked him down to 2 to 5 in the Mutuels, just aren't good enough to make him muss his hair.

Millers Head For High Spot

Object To Rating In Second Division.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The Minneapolis Millers served notice today that pre-season predictions placing them in the second division of the American Association were all wrong.

Behind the steady pitching of Phil Lefebvre and Otis Clark, the Millers defeated last year's AA champions, the Kansas City Blues, in both ends of a Sunday double header, 6 to 5 and 5 to 0.

Clark hurled the nightcap, a seven-inning two-hit shutout. The Millers won the opener by scoring what proved to be the winning run in the eighth frame and then shutting a blue rally off after one man had scored in the ninth.

In an abbreviated five-inning contest, John Whitehead hurled the Toledo Mud Hens to their first victory of the season, a 5 to 1 decision over Louisville. The game was called because of weather conditions.

The Milwaukee Brewers proved that the American Association ball was not "dead." After dropping the opener of a double bill to St. Paul by a 7 to 4 score, the Brewers came back in to the nightcap to record a 24 to 3 win. The Brewers got 21 hits and in both games the hits for the two teams totaled 58.

The Columbus Red Birds and Indianapolis were weathered out at Columbus. They were to start today's single game at 11:30 a. m. (CWT) for the benefit of war plant workers on night and late afternoon shifts.

GET FORMS FOR LIQUOR RATIONS

program calls for buyers to make purchases from stores in their own neighborhoods. This zone regulation already has been placed in effect in an effort to curb "stooge" and "chain" buying from retail establishments.

The director said purchase books, about the size of bank pass books, would be issued in alphabetical order at retail stores beginning May 17. State agencies are expected to close then until rationing starts. It was indicated actual rationing would start about June 1 unless book production problems upset the department's plans.

Forms postmarked after May 10 vill not be honored during the inial registration period, store ataches said they had been informed.

No provision was made for registration or subsequent sale of liquor to incapacitated persons, unable to call at the store, or members of the armed forces, although the weekly bulletin issued by the state liquor department advised that such measures were under consideration.

Registration forms were stampd with the store number as they ere issued making it necessary hat the blanks be returned to the ame store from which they were btained. Many applicants from utside the Mansfield zone, who ought the forms, were refused.

It was not until the store opened his afternoon that the huge packge containing the forms was pened. It was received several ays ago with directions that it ot be opened until today. This, ore attaches said, was to safeuard any ahead-of -schedule registrations.

STANDS BY GAS SHORTAGE CLAIM

Patterson Insists U. S. Lacks Aviation Fuel, Now Lays Blame on Nelson.

"We will have the most powerful airforce in the world, more powerful than the combined forces of our foes. We will produce the maximum number of planes. We will train the maximum number of pilots and crews.

"Thus, unless we have the necessary supplies of fuel for those planes, it is clear enough that we cannot put forth our full effort in the air."

Patterson took direct issue with the previous testimony of Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, that poor distribution is the reason for a shortage of high octane gas for training. This he denied emphatically.

Patterson also placed ultimate responsibility for the situation on the shoulders of Nelson, instead of Rubber Directors Jeffers.

He said that both he and Jeffers are rival claimants before the WPB for materials, one to build synthetic rubber plants and the other to build high octane gas plants.

"The chairman of the board (Nelson) is responsible to see that these decisions are fair and in the interests of the war effort," said Patterson.

Paterson was called as a witness in place of Jeffers after, it was reported, Jeffers informed the Truman committee that he should be the last witness since he was being accused of blocking the war effort.

Patterson said that he held Jeffers "in high esteem" and respected "his character and patriotism."

"I deeply regret that my recent remarks have been interpreted as reflecting on either," he emphasized. "I had no such intentions. He has performed his duty in pressing the synthetic rubber program vigorously and I don't resent it.

"On the other hand it is my duty to make ever effort to see that our supplies of 100 octane gasoline are ample and Mr. Jeffers should not resent my efforts along these lines either."

the drive brought in about $17,000,000,000 or around $4,000,000,000 more than the goal, and most of it came from non-banking sources.

The treasury expects to announce the final total about May 10. Banking houses were limited to $5,000,000,000 participation.

Secretary Morgenthau expressed satisfaction at the success of the drive, which ended at midnight Saturday, and at the same time served notice of even greater goals for future campaigns.

"The unprecedented sum borrowed in this campaign reflects the earnestness and vigor of our national war effort," Morgenthau said.

STOCK LEADERS ADVANCE AGAIN BY FRACTIONS

Steel Scrap Delivery In Better Volume Although Reserves Lag.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK -- Leading stocks moved up fractions to a point or so in today's early market transactions.

In front at a fairly active opening were U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Baltimore & Ohio, Chrysler, DuPont, United Aircraft, Bethlehem Steel and Union Carbide.

Followers of the metals scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that, while scrap was being delivered in better volume, with quality improved on average, scant progress was being made in accumulating reserves.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Grains advanced at the opening today on less favorable crop reports, but the market was quiet and without feature.

Wheat started unchanged to ⅜ higher, May $1.44⅜-½, July $1.43⅝, and corn was unchanged at ceilings, May $1.05.

1943 PROFIT DOWN

NEW YORK —(AP)— Hazel-Atlas Glass company reported today profit in the fiscal quarter ended March 27 amounted to $662,782, equal to $1.50 a share on its capital stock, compared with $729,966, or $1.68 a share, in the like period of 1942.

LEWIS SUMMONS POLICY - MAKERS

Union Group To Confer on Resuming Negotiations on New Contract.

meeting of the policy committee.

He had just returned from Washington where he had conferred with Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, administrator of the mines seized by the government Saturday.

Lewis was accompanied to Washington by John O'Leary, vice-president of the union; Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer, and Percy Tetlow, member of the International executive committee.

They reported to the policy committee of 300 members at 8:30 p. m. At 9:30, Lewis issued this statement:

"The policy committee of the United Mine Workers has just agreed by unanimous vote of its membership to restore all mines to immediate operation for a period of 15 days, beginning Tuesday, this period to be utilized in cooperation with the coordinator of solid fuels for war (Ickes) and the authority of the United States government to work out a new wage contract for the anthracite and bituminous coal industry. The agreement when worked out will be retroactive in all of its terms and provisions to April 1, 1943, in the bituminous and to May 1, 1943, in the anthracite industry.

"The mine workers recognize that they have a new employer who has not yet had time to appraise the immediate problem facing the industry. It is our desire to cooperate with the government and to relieve the country from the confusion and stress of the existing situation.

"We are hopeful that this act will be accepted by our government and the citizens of the nation as an act of wholesome good faith and secure for the mine workers at last that consideration for their wage proposals which they believe to be due. * * *

* * * I salute you, coal miners. Your hearts are of oak and your record of patriotism can never be challenged."

post-war problems being made by this organization and revealed that Rotary membership has been growing in all countries in which clubs have been permitted to continue.

"Rotary can live only in countries where the people have freedom to think and speak," he said, "and where they are free from suppression and fear."

Emphasizing the importance of individual co-operation with the civilian defense program, he said, "This nation can be no stronger than the communities of which it is made up."

Music at this session was directed by LeMoine Dick of the Mansfield club, and the invocation was by Rev. R. Tattie Crowe of Shelby.

A financial report for the district was made by Charles N. Sutton, of Attica, past district governor, and District Governor Bohn reported on the state of Rotary in the district.

"Rotary and an Enduring World," was the subject of a talk given by Harry N. Hansen, of Toledo, past district governor, as the concluding feature of the morning session, followed by award of attendance honors.

Following a noon luncheon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, while the Rotary Anns were meeting at the Women's club, Harry Poulston, past district governor and director of Rotary International at Lima, was to speak on "How Rotary International Operates."

At the afternoon sessions at the Majestic theater, Fred Hopkins, past district governor of the Fostoria club was scheduled to speak "On the Alert for Youth," and Philip R. Adams, director of the gallery of Fine arts at Columbus, was to discuss "The Latin-American Scene."

Concluding session, a dinner-meeting in the hotel ball room will be held this evening at which time Richards will address the group on "Building."

A report of the resolution committee will be made by Victor Lyle of the Oberlin club.

Forty-two of the district's 48 clubs were represented in the opening social session of the conference held Sunday night in the ball room of the hotel, with Harold W. Arlin, of the Mansfield club as conference chairman.

Dr. Charles L. Anspach, former president of Ashland college, now president of Central Michigan college at Mt. Pleasant, Mich., was the speaker, with "Fellowship Through Club Service" as his subject. He was introduced by District Governor Julius E. Bohn, superintendent of Ashland public schools.

In lighter vein was the operatic rendition of Jack and Jill, adapted to the manner of various composers. This feature was introduced by J. Howard Gongwer, chairman of the conference committee on music and entertainment. Participants were Claude M. Hunter as narrator, Margaret Hall as pianist and Mary Anglin, Martha Bergstrom, Thelma Reed, Doris Ranck, Earl Troll and Perry Milliken as soloists.

Group singing was directed by J. Martin Beck, of Elyria, with piano accompaniment by John E. Hartzler, of Ashland.

MINERS START RETURN MARCH TO COAL PITS

Obey FDR Appeal and Lewis Truce Announcement; Full Operations Seen.

steel mills and railroads as "partially precarious." Ickes said some steel plants in Ohio had an average of only 24 days supply.

However, Ickes regarded the prospects now as sufficiently good to permit cancellation of the "freeze" on in-transit shipments of coal, which was ordered last week to help make available supplies go where most needed.

By mid-morning the White House still had announced no official recognizance of Lewis' truce plan. Late last night, after the president's call for resumption of work, a secretary said "nothing official" had been heard from the union leader.

The president appealed to the miners last night to go back to work for their country literally, with the government operating more than 3,850 mines and cease "obstructing our war effort."

"I want to make it clear," he said, "that every American miner who has stopped mining coal —no matter how sincere his motives, no matter how legitimate he may believe his grievances to be—every idle miner directly and individually is obstructing our war effort."

Mr. Roosevelt did not mention Lewis by name, but his appeal to the miners—whose full scale walkout followed the latter's call not to "trespass" on company property without a contract—came just 20 minutes after the UMW chieftain had announced the truce in New York.

Lewis said the union's policy committee had voted unanimously "to restore all mines to immediate operation for a period of 15 days beginning Tuesday." He said the truce time would be spent in seeking to work out new contracts to replace those wich have expired in the hard and soft coal industries.

Labor Secretary Frances Perkins said Fuel Administrator Ickes, picked by the president to direct operation of the mines for the government, would confer with the disputants during the 15-day period and try to bring them together. She termed the truce "a wise decision" on the part of the UMW leaders.

The decision was made after Lewis and other leaders had conferred with Ickes during a sudden Sunday trip here from New York, where the contract negotiations had been in progress. While in Washington, Lewis talked with Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the U. S. conciliation service, and the latter said later that "I strongly advised the union to reach an understanding with their new employer, Mr. Ickes, and go along with him 100 per cent."

The president's speech—apparently unchanged by so much as a comma by the last-minute news from New York—left no doubt he considered striking the same as deserting the ranks of the military service. He pictured the miners as fighting beside the men at the war fronts, appealed to their patriotism and said he believed "they will answer promptly this call to perform this essential war service."

"A stopping of the coal supply, even for a short time, would involve a gamble with the lives of American soldiers and sailors and the future security of our whole people," the president said. "It would involve an unwarranted, unnecessary and terribly dangerous gamble with our chances for victory.

"Therefore, I say to all miners and to all Americans everywhere, at home and abroad, the production of coal will not be stopped."

Announcement of Ickes in the role of referee, as well as manager of the government-operated mines, spurred speculation concerning the future of the War Labor board whose jurisdiction was challenged by the mine leaders.

The president had insisted that only the WLB could settle the contract dispute, but the UMW refused to do business with it, charging it with prejudice, and a spreading wave of walkouts was climaxed by virtual shutdown of the industry Saturday when a contract extension expired. The president promptly ordered federal seizure and operation of the mines, but stood pat in his support of the board's jurisdiction.

However, Ickes' assignment caused observers to wonder if this meant the board had been by-passed.

There was speculation in labor circles early today that the most likely compromise ground would be found in discussions of a universal six-day week for the coal mining industry. Ickes has been one of the principal proponents of the six-day week. However, the mine union has held that the operators have been receiving coal prices adjusted to compensate for the extra day and its premium pay—but have not operated on that basis.

While reliable informants said this was one of the chief subjects discussed at the Sunday pre-truce conference here, Secretary Perkins told reporters the truce included no promises to the United Mine Workers. It was assumed, however, that should a six-day week compromise be worked out, it would tend to absorb the wage increase phases of the contract dispute.

The principal issues in both the hard and soft coal controversies are for $2-a-day wage increases, underground travel pay and unionization of minor bosses.

Cancels Order On Coal Shipments

WASHINGTON -- (AP) -- The office of Fuels Administrator Ickes said today that freeze of in-transit shipments of coal had been cancelled in view of the truce assuring resumption of mining for two weeks at least.

The freeze covering both bituminous and anthracite in railroad cars, was ordered last week by the war production board on Ickes' recommendation to insure distribution of the coal to those needing it for war production.

were ordered to be at work not later than tomorrow.

The brief work stoppage was not expected to interfere materially with resumption of the mines, for most Buckeye diggings had prepared to work under federal operation today provided enough miners to man the shafts answered the president's appeal.

H. T. Rainey, UMW field representative in southern Ohio, said he would "make every effort" to get as many men as possible back to work today in his area.

Pacifico termed the agreement to end the work stoppage for two weeks pending negotiations "the proper thing to do."

"The nation must have coal to carry on the war effort," he asserted, "and all of us, of course, want to do everything possible. I feel sure they (the miners) will comply wholeheartedly."

Miners generally said they were pleased to end the holiday but emphasized that in so doing they were following orders of Lewis. During the holiday most miners remained at their homes and an exceptionally "quiet" week-end was reported in mining towns.

"We're glad to go back," commented one miner, "but we never would have re-entered the pits except on orders from John Lewis."

Operator representatives, too, expressed pleasure that the work stoppage had ended.

"Naturally the coal operators are very glad that a solution has been found to get the miners back to work," asserted R. L. Ireland, president of the Ohio Coal association.

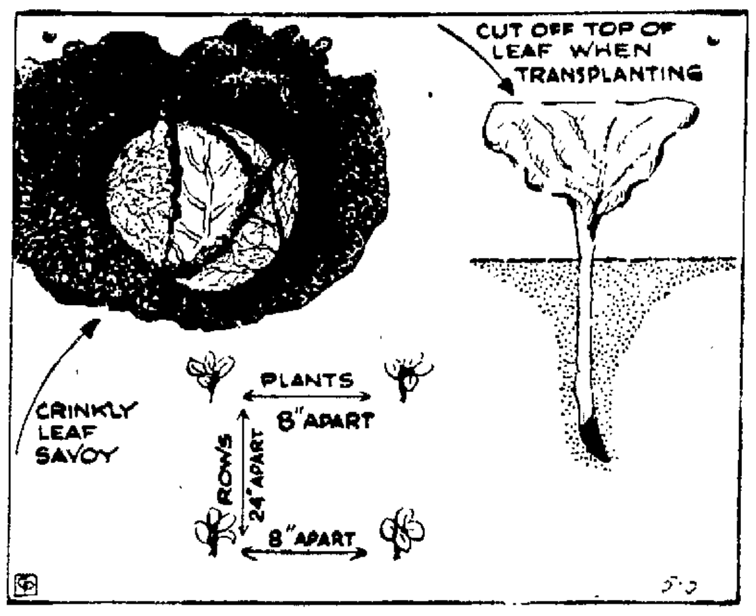
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Cabbages In Victory Garden for Year Round Use.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Association)

MOST VICTORY gardeners will prefer to buy their cabbage plants rather than to raise them from seed. In order to add variety to the home menu some of the red cabbages and savoy types should be included in the Victory garden if there is space. Of the red varieties Red Acre is the most desirable early variety and Mammoth Rock Red is suggested for later use. By planting early and late cabbages one can enjoy their summer use as greens and also store them for winter use and the making of kraut.

The savoy cabbage is excellent at any season of its growth but it is at its best after it has been touched by frost.

The savoy varieties produce an abundance of crinkly green leaves, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Many people prefer the savoy types in home gardens, claiming that they are sweeter in taste and more tender in quality than other cababge.

Early varieties of cabbage may be set out as soon as the soil is prepared, provided all danger of a heavy frost is past. These early plants can be set as close as 15 or 18 inches apart in rows two feet apart, as illustrated.

When cabbage plants are being transplanted during warm weather it is avisable to shear off the top of the leaves as illustrated. This is an aid in checking excessive evaporation of moisture.

county officer holders when he made the statement. He told the house last week, however, that a Mansfield numbers operator had come to his office to tell him that if the anti-numbers bill passed he (the operator) would have to "quit business."

In a letter to O'Donnell, Cave, a former speaker of the Ohio house of representatives, said he felt that Catlett's statement "should not be allowed to pass unnoticed by your office."

"If such corrupt practice exists even in other counties of the state, it should be your duty to forward such information either to the attorney general of the state or to county prosecutors in counties where it applies, or both."

Catlett's report of the attorney general's Youngstown probe made action by the Richland county acting prosecutor unnecessary, it was decided.

Referring to Cave's request for a grand jury probe in Richland county, O'Donnell said "it's easy to call an investigation, but the prosecutor must have witnesses and specific evidence to present to the grand jury."

He said today's inquiry failed to produce enough evidence of gambling activities here to warrant an investigation by the grand jury.

The Darwin raid was made at mid-morning yesterday by 21 bombers escorted by 30 fighters. It resulted in only "negligible" damage to the north Australia port, the communique said.

Allied ground batteries threw up a heavy fire and a sizeable force of Spitfires went after the raiders, which came over at 26,000 feet. Several Allied pilots were rescued, a spokesman said. The Japanese losses included three fighters destroyed and nine fighters and a bomber damaged.

"Our own air losses were heavy," the communique added for the first time in reporting such an engagement.

Allied air activity in the southwest Pacific yesterday was scattered. The Mubo area in northwest New Guinea was bombed, and a single plane bombed the Finisch harbor, New Guinea.

Lull Marks African Battle Situation

(By Associated Press)

Americans, British and French mopped up pockets of resistance, fought off weakening German counterattacks and prepared for the next great phase as a temporary interlude in the heavy fighting settled upon the jagged hills of Tunisia, allied headquarters announced today.

That the lull was to be brief was indicated, however, by Gen. Henri Giraud, French military and civilian commander, who predicted "This month of May will see the complete defeat of the boche in Tunisia."

Other headlines from the war:

AIR FRONT: RAF bomber-fighter force hits Ijmuiden steel center in Holland after Americans' four-engined bombers smash at St. Nazaire submarine nest Saturday.

"Our patrols were active and two local attacks made by the enemy were repulsed. Some prisoners were taken," said the communique from Gen Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters in its only mention of ground action in Tunisia.

The allied air forces, too, were comparatively idle, the communique reporting only the steady patrol of Axis defense positions and communication routes in which three enemy planes were shot down and two United Nations aircraft lost.

FAIR ENOUGH--

By Westbrook Pegler

TUCSON, Ariz.—The one man who is solely to blame for the strike of the coal miners and the resultant damage equal, as he, himself, has estimated to the loss of a battle in the field is President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt, knowing the dictatorial, ruthless and selfish character of John L. Lewis, raised him to power by the grant of many favors. In November, 1941, long after he and Lewis had broken and shortly before Pearl Harbor, he allowed Lewis to welsh on an agreement to abide by a decision of the old national defense mediation board in the dispute over the closed shop in the so-called captive coal mines.

Pegler

If an employer or an industry had agreed, as Lewis did, to abide by the decision of a government agency and then had rejected the official decision, that employer of industry would have been scourged up and down the land by all the powers of the New Deal government. Indeed, in previous cases, the government had seized properties and tried to operate them in the fumbling, bungling way of the embittered incompetents, failures and malcontents, who infest the maze of government bureaus in Washington. The properties were seized not for failure to obey any law or abide by any agreement, but for refusing to submit to the rule of the president's henchmen in the union racket.

The Federal Shipbuilding company was one victim whose operations were impaired by picketing, harassment and seizure was for the sole reason that the company refused to violate that declared principle of the Wagner act which guarantees workers the right to select their own collective bargaining agents. The union, one of the Lewis group of unions, insisted that the nonjoiners be compelled to accept its services as bargaining agent and with the help of the government, the union won while the erstwhile free workers, the principle of freedom and the nation lost.

The Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad, an efficient freight line which paid good wages, was beset with a demand for the adoption of the fake-work, make-work man-wasting feather-bed rules of the unions. The company held out against bombings and other subtleties and stood on its lawful rights. For this it was punished by seizure and the feather-bed system was installed while Paul McNutt and others in Washington were raising the cry of manpower shortage and imposing by devious and oblique methods that conscription of labor which Mrs. Roosevelt first proposed to the nation after an interesting Sunday evening conversation about a year ago. With loafers still making idle motions on mock-jobs not only on the railroads but in many other works, notoriously on the highway freight trucks entering the New York and New Jersey area, other men are put under compulsion on the ground that there is a shortage of manpower.

The welshing of Lewis in the captive coal mine case was flagrant, defiant and clear cut. Two officials of his miners' union were planted on the old mediation board to represent his interests and when the decision came down it was 9 to 2 against him. His men, Philip Murray, new president of the CIO and a bitter enemy of Lewis, and Thomas Kennedy were the two men who cast the minority vote in his favor. When the decision went against him Lewis took Murphy and Kennedy off the board and that was the end of that agency.

Then followed the snide and dishonest trick. The president had vowed publicly that "the government of the United States will not order nor will congress pass legislation ordering, a so-called closed shop." But far from moving against Lewis the president through a few servile senators blocked legislation passed by the house to place on unions responsibilities equal to their powers and privileges. He appointed a new board of three men to settle again a dispute which already had been decided against Lewis by an official agency whose ruling Lewis had agreed to obey and then repudiated.

Lewis was one member of this new board and it was a foregone conclusion, of course, that he would vote for his own interests. Benjamin Fairless, president of the company which owned the mines was the second member and it was certain that he would vote for himself. The third member was John R. Steelman of the federal conciliation service and it was absolutely certain that he would vote for Lewis.

Steelman entered heartily into the spirit of the fraud, withdrawing temporarily from his federal status so that he could say that he was not acting as a government agent although, of course, it was perfectly plain that he was acting for President Roosevelt and that he would vote with Lewis against Fairless and give Lewis the closed shop which the president had solemnly declared this government would never concede.

The morning after Pearl Harbor, Steelman's decision came out. Lewis had won. The president of the United States had broken a solemn pledge and repudiated a principle on which he had placed a high value.

Although Murray has since been flattered, consulted and referred to as a labor leader of high principle, he showed his principle when he repudiated his undertaking by resigning from the old mediation board under the orders of Lewis, whom he has since denounced as a tyrant and a notorious liar, merely because a decision went against him.

These people are all political creatures of the president's creation. He raised them from obscurity and nonentity and they are his babies and he is responsible for their acts.

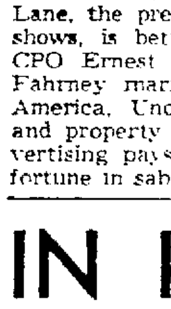
IN HOLLYWOOD--

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Two young former newspapermen and press agents who still think in terms of headlines and advertising catch phrases are having a tremendous lot of fun, making money in habit-forming quantities and indulging in private, well-bred laughter at the geniuses of the film industry.

The two quaint souls are Bill Pine and Bill Thomas, and they form Paramount's Pine & Thomas production unit. They turn out six regular pictures a year and two or three specials, and they turn 'em out in an uproarious hurry. You tell them that they don't make the best pictures in Hollywood and they won't argue. They'll just ask you who makes better pictures any quicker or less expensively.



Coons

Thomas is an energetic, jerky young man who appears perpetually on the brink of a nervous breakdown, and is the only Hollywood executive who can bustle while standing still. Expounding some of his principles of movie-making, he says:

"Bill Pine and I operate on the principle that making motion pictures is nothing but a practical business. Yes, there are artistic elements too perhaps. But essentially it's just a practical business like making shoes or airplanes or running a restaurant.

"On our budget we can't afford the frills which go along with the million-dollar opuses. We don't need 'em and we don't want 'em. All we want is a good script, a few assorted actors and the necessary equipment. Then we'll turn out films, and some of them will be good films."

Thomas always places tongue firmly in cheek when the talk turns to Hollywood geniuses.

"I've often wondered how a man feels when he learns he's a genius and how he makes the discovery," commented Thomas, waving his arms and hopping from one foot to the other. "Does it dawn on him suddenly in the night? Or does he look at himself while shaving and surprisedly say 'Old man, you're a genius'? And when he decides it, how does he go about convincing anyone of it?"

About the only thing Pine and Thomas insist on when they start shooting a picture is a good script. As Thomas puts it: "If you've got a good script, you've got a chance. If you've got a bad script, you haven't a chance."

The two Bills have an unusual way of deciding whether a script is good. It's the influence of their old press agent days, and the test to which they put a screen play is: 'Could we write a good advertisement from it?'

If it has the elements of a good ad according to this line of reasoning, it has the elements of a good film.

SENATE ACTS ON CONGRESSIONAL SHIFT TONIGHT

Bill Provides For Revision of Districts After Each 10-Year Census.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—The Ohio senate will act tonight on a bill to revise the state's congressional districts for the first time in 40 years.

Senator Carl D. Sheppard, R., Summit, has proposed a system for revision of the congressional districts after each 10-year federal census to provide automatic change in their number and arrangement according to shifts of population.

Substantial progress toward adjournment late this month was expected this week as committees scheduled work on important unfinished business.

The senate commerce and labor committee tonight will consider bills to revise portions of the workmen's compensation and to increase payment by war plants into the state unemployment compensation fund. The senate finance committee pressed forward with hearings on the house approved $366,000,000 appropriations bill and hopes to report it for action next week.

Meanwhile, the house taxation committee will meet tomorrow for further consideration of Governor Bricker's controversial proposal for an $8,000,000 sales tax repeal.

Representative L. H. Myers, R., Allen, chairman of the house labor committee, hoped a hearing meeting tomorrow on the senate approved bill to relax female and child labor standards may complete public debate before the committee so the controversial measure may reach the house calendar next week.

A month ago the senate elections committee recommended passage of Sheppard's redistricting bill after having made certain revisions. Last week Sheppard arose in the senate to demand action on the bill and threatened to question the worth of every bill on the senate calendar unless his own appeared on the calendar soon.

His re-districting plan would not take effect until just before the 1951 election and would revise the present 22 districts for that election.

Every 10th year after 1951 small adjoining districts would be combined or larger districts divided depending respectively upon decrease or increase of the state's congressional representation. Representatives-at-large would be eliminated in the 1951 election.

The present 22 congressional districts were defined by the general assembly in 1913 on the basis of the 1910 federal census and all attempts to revise them after the 1920, 1930, 1940 censuses failed. Increase of Ohio's representation in the house of representatives necessitated election of two congressmen-at-large but a drop in the state's congressional representation after 1940 reduced at-large representation to one in the 1942 election.

FLAMES LEVEL HOME OF STAR

Joan Bennett, Children Forced To Flee; She Weeps as She Surveys Damage.

(By International News Service)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.—Fire which forced members of the family to flee for their lives left in ruins today the 15-room Holmby Hills mansion of Joan Bennett and her husband, Walter Wanger, the producer.

The fire broke out in the basement early yesterday before the couple's two children, Diana and Melinda Market, were up. It was discovered by a maid.

By the time the flames were brought under control by seven fire companies that responded to a two-alarm call the fine two-story French provincial home, built at a cost of $200,000, was virtually a total loss. The brick walls were still standing, but much of the roof had fallen in and flames had completely gutted the building.

The film star burst into tears as she surveyed the damage. The loss included the destruction of a new nursery built for the baby she expects in a month.

When the alarm was given by the maid the actress and her children fled in robes thrown over their night clothes. Wanger got out in hastily donned coat, trousers and slippers.

POSTOFFICE ON NEW SCHEDULE

Mansfield's postoffice today had started on a schedule of new hours and pay schedule.

The work schedule provides for the closing of postoffice windows at 12 noon rather than 12:30 p. m. on Saturdays.

The change in hours is a part of new regulations which give postal employes a raise of $300 per year or 15 per cent to those working on an hourly basis.

The regulations also call for cessation of time and a half pay for overtime with employes receiving straight time for any time worked over 40 hours a week.

FEARS RESULTS OF ROLL-BACK

Midwestern Senator Asks OPA To Check on Threat To Stock Production.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry (R) Neb., today expressed fear that the rolling back of meat prices promised by OPA Administrator Prentiss M. Brown will cripple production of livestock.

Charging that lower retail prices of meats will slash even further the margin of the producer, Wherry asserted that "the way to keep down prices is to encourage feeding so we can have an economy of plenty instead of scarcity."

Wherry, in a letter to Brown, asked the OPA chief what effect the rolling back of prices will have on increasing production.

"Does this mean that you expect to roll back the price so that the producer and feeder of livestock will be on lower levels for the coming months?" Wherry inquired.

"Hearings before the sub-committee (investigating the meat situation) of which I am a member, reveal that the producer, especially the cattle feeder, is receiving now approximately the same price for his cattle on the hoof that he received in any corresponding month of 1942, and yet in some spots of this country the retail price of meat has practically doubled," he said.

"Evidence shows that the feeders' cost have nearly doubled; especially is this true with labor. And because the feeder is confronted with the narrowest margin in history, we are facing an alarming situation."

MODIFIES NEWS COVERAGE BAN ON FOOD MEET

White House Agrees To State Department Request For Easing of Rules.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—At the suggestion of the state department, the White House today is understood to have agreed to a slight modification of the ban on news coverage at the forthcoming United Nations food conference.

Arrangements are being made to establish news headquarters in a dance casino on the grounds of the Homestead hotel, at Hot Springs, Va., where the conference is scheduled to convene on May 18.

Reporters will be permitted to enter the hotel grounds in order to reach the casino. Previously reporters were to be banned from the grounds as well as the hotel except for the perfunctory opening and closing sessions of the conference.

While the new arrangements represent a slight concession to the press, reporters still will be prohibited from entering the hotel to talk to delegates or for any other purpose except to attend two formal sessions of the conference.

State department officials are hopeful the news restriction may be further modified before the conference opens. It is no secret that the state department was not responsible for President Roosevelt's decision to curb the press at the conference.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull prides himself on his friendly relations with newsmen.

If Hull had his way, there is reason to believe newsmen would be given the same freedom at the food conclave that it normally enjoys at any international conference.
